Physical Education Students Enjoy our Winter Wonderland

Ms. Jess Herbst and Mr. Jerome Hurley both “love to get the kids outside to enjoy the fresh air!” Snowman building shows creative expression and helps students develop teamwork skills! Many students extend what they learn in physical education classes and build a snowman of their own when they are home with friends and family members.

Speaker Mrs. Gail Schick Teaches Suicide Awareness to Freshmen Health Students

In Mrs. Sherri Morrell’s health class, outside speaker Gail Schick taught freshmen about suicide awareness. She introduced students to the QPR method, which stands for Question, Persuade, and Refer. Most young people do not tell an adult if a friend talks about suicide and the QPR method encourages communication and response.

Fifth Grade Students “Became” Explorers in Mrs. Sherman’s Class

Fifth grade students in Mrs. Melissa Sherman’s reading class researched explorers. After writing research reports, students made posters of their explorers. These posters were used when they read their reports to the class!

Making Christmas Cookies in Eighth Grade Living Skills

Eighth grade students in Mrs. Pam Beschta’s living skills class learn essential skills like cooking, baking, and sewing. Students finish the class learning job readiness skills like communication in the workplace. Pictured here are Elliot Proft, Hailey Poquette, and Emma Raygo making cookie cut-outs. Tyler Appleglise is modeling the finished product!

Seventh Grade Students Make Borax Crystal Ornaments

Mrs. Nancy Smith has been subbing for Mrs. Kim Fischer. Staff members from left to right is Mrs. Amy McMahaon, Mrs. Smith, and Ms. Shirlee Risner, who all decided to dress up in their ugliest sweaters! Some students wanted a picture together! Students from left to right are Lillian Block, Evan Lange, Steven Drees. Alex Johnson took the picture.

High School Honors Groups Rho Kappa and NHS make gifts for Residents of The Cottages

The National Honor Society(NHS) and Rho Kappa history club students worked together to create some holiday cheer for all of the residents of The Cottages Assisted Living facility in Peshtigo. The high school students baked candy and Christmas cookies together. In addition, they wrote cards, donated, and wrapped gifts for all eighteen residents. Pictured include Salsabeel Salem and Krista Bautzmann making cards and the group effort of baking and packaging gifts. Mrs. Cindy Birch is the NHS advisor and the Rho Kappa advisors are Mrs. Amy Reed and Mr. Luka Zischka.

Fourth Grade Students Make Stocking Hat Ornaments in Mrs. Nelson's Class

Using yarn and a cardboard roll, Mrs. Julie Nelson has taught her students how to make stocking hat ornaments, which she herself learned back in elementary school. Mrs. Nelson has taught her students how to make these for twenty-three years and says, "MANY students, long graduated, probably still have these on their family trees!" Pictured are Corey Derouin, Jereson Camps, and Wyatt Seefeldt.

Winter Band and Choir Concerts Were a Hit!

At all grade levels, students in band and choir performed holiday concerts which were live streamed. At the high school level, the concert band and jazz band each performed several songs including "Sleigh Ride" and "A Jazzy Merry Christmas". The high school concert choir and a cappella choir also performed songs such as "Adeste Fideles" and "White Winter Hymnal". At the PELC, students were able to see their classmates perform familiar songs like "Frosty the Snowman". Pictured below is third grade students throwing pretend snowballs into the audience! For the fifth and sixth grade performances, approximately twenty students from each grade also played a ukulele during the song.

Students Collected Donations and Raised Money for the Animal Shelter

As part of Mrs. Tammy Lesandrini's high school career exploration class, students collected financial donations of $1,238.51 in addition to all of the donations of pet food, cleaning supplies, animal toys, and other items for the Menominee Area Animal Shelter. Students from all grade levels contributed!
